

Canadian Fiber Bragg Grating

Overview

In 1978, researchers at the Communications Research Centre Canada were the first to observe photo-induced change of refractive index in glass optical fibres and demonstrate writing permanent refractive index gratings that act as very selective optical filters. Fibre Bragg grating (FBG) is an optical filtering device inscribed within the core of an optical fibre which reflects light of a specific wavelength, dependent on the inscribed grating period. With our fully equipped laboratories, laser systems - including 4 femtosecond pulse duration Titanium. To manufacture and market fiber Bragg grating products, you need a fiber Bragg grating license. Totalling more than 3, 200 ft², the rooms are used mostly for the manufacturing of our Space-Qualified Optical Amplifiers. A moving phase mask and an electro-optic phase-modulation (EOPM) based interferometer are used with a high precision 1-meter long translation stage and compared.
